STAGES OF FAITH TRAINING LEADERS

Don's research shows that believers will often find some vital aspects of the Childhood stage of faith that they have ignored or neglected, delaying their progress. And too many followers of Christ will plateau and stall—some permanently—in the Young Adulthood stage of faith, in a borrowed, secondhand, and conforming faith. Then, sadly, there is a shortage of full-grown Parents in the faith who are deep and whole and can provide skilled guidance to others. Therefore, the ongoing development of followers of Christ is paramount to having one's church or mission organization become a center of spiritual growth and a training ground for leaders.

A strategy—a coherent plan for discipleship and spiritual growth—is needed to help believers become transformed rather than merely informed. Addressing this need, Don invites you to think in Stages of Faith about how spiritual growth occurs in a distinctively different way. Then, he provides resources and proven direction for the journey. In the last chapter of The Path: How to Understand & Experience Authentic Spiritual Growth, Don proposes five vital steps for leadership to consider as they guide the growth of people in different stages of spiritual development.

These resources can make an impact in your church, small groups, disciple-making organization, college or seminary spiritual formation courses, and Christian counseling.

Also, Don has developed a ministry to men that transforms—Men Made New®. Men learn to prioritize the study and personal application of God's Word. But, men need to know and be known by other men. Optimal spiritual growth can't happen alone. Spiritual growth happens as men meet intentionally in relationships which offer both support and challenge. "On the journey, we need each other."
